

Tina the Technical Writer

Where: Ooky Muck

Before I wrote technical manuals, I used to be a stringer for Galaxy, a Hollywood tabloid. I had fun mixing it up with the stars, but got tired of making up stuff, finding connections that were never there.

...call her Miss Generosity. SB's donation of a cool million to tsunami victims is generating a lot of buzz in Tinseltown. Meanwhile, CNBC host DM may have picked up testosterone from his former Monday night gig, showing support for President Bush in a recent performance (03/95)...although TD may no longer have love potion number 9 with his former girl-"Friend", he can at least take comfort in the royalties from his guest appearances in season 4. JW may not be a method actor in real life, but he'll play one playing himself playing a Kwik-E-Mart clerk on FOX's hit animated series (01/97)...Entertainment Weekly plans a tribute to MS chronicling her various Oscar snubs, accent on snub. KB may have not gotten a nod from the Academy, but at least his name is immortalized in a popular on-line game (01/94)...GD may be an unlikely MENSA member, but she's an even less likely archer, at least according to the US Archery coach. Her former husband JG meanwhile reminisced about his failed romances with various co-stars. Perhaps it's just chaos theory? (04/86)...the death of BL, son of a martial arts cinematic master, still generates controversy. Speaking of ghosts, EH, the "fourth" buster, never had much success following the two spookfests, appearing in low-budget straight-to-video films (05/94)...ringside at the Lakers game, our roving reporter spotted longtime fan JN and star of the spinoff to the Practice JS hobnobbing. Discussing a little sex, lies and videotape? Of Halle Berry's recent feline performance, MP called it a "dog." Feeling a little catty, dear? Or perhaps jealous that you got Michael Keaton, and she got Benjamin Bratt (03/94)...until next time, E pluribus unum!
